training services to companies creating new jobs or experiencing technological change. VJIP supports existing businesses and economic development prospects by offering funding to offset recruiting, training and retraining costs incurred by companies that are either creating new jobs or implementing technological upgrade.

VJIP was created in 1965 as part of the Virginia Community College System's industrial training program and has continually retooled to meet the changing needs of employers. For example separate criteria with lower qualifying thresholds have been developed for small businesses in an effort to be more inclusive and support the growth of small businesses in Virginia. This is particularly important for the many small businesses here in Manassas.

In addition to funding that VJIP offers for new job creation and retraining projects, companies may also receive free consulting services. Primarily these include facilitating relationships between the company and Virginia's workforce system partners, but also includes introductions to other VEDP services, other state agencies and help with human resources-specific questions and challenges.

If your company is growing and considering expansion, please call Nicole Smith at 703-257-8882 to discuss how VJIP can support that growth.
